First All-Green Gallery in North America

The Beaver Brook Art Gallery in New Brunswick, Canada is internationally known for its outstanding collection of paintings from the Elizabethan, Renaissance, and modern eras.

It's also now famous for something else... the facility is quite possibly the first all-Green gallery in North America, having recently transferred from using traditional cleaning products to only environmentally preferable ones.

"It all came about rather quickly," says George Hill, the facility's building manager. "We select cleaning supplies once a year, and decided it was time to look at Green offerings."

Like many people, Hill had questions about the effectiveness, cost, and safety of using environmentally preferable cleaning products. To address his concerns, he met with the gallery's janitor distributor and Mike Sawchuk of Enviro-Solutions, a leading manufacturer of Green cleaning products.

“Basically, Sawchuk and the distributor went through all of my cleaning needs – washrooms, art studios, galleries, and offices – and came back with a list of recommended products manufactured by Enviro-Solutions,” says Hill.

He add that through this meeting, he learned a great deal about the Green certification process, what it means, its importance, and how it verifies that the cleaning products are safer, cost competitive, and effective. In fact, as to the cost difference between the traditional and Green cleaning products, Hill says it is “negligible.”

“We believe not only is it healthier for our staff, visitors, and the environment to go Green, but it helps protect the great masterpieces in our care,” says Hill. “I’d recommend Enviro-Solutions products to anyone.”
